

Allison Heppell

Glenn Marais played both our engagement party and our wedding (the ceremony, cocktail hour, and reception) and we would not have had it any other way. Prior to this we saw Glenn and his band at a number of other functions, and they are consistently fantastic every single time. Glenn is an incredibly talented singer and musician, and a wonderful human being. It is really obvious that these guys love what they do and care about your event being special. It can be difficult to please everyone when you choose a live band, but if you hire The Glenn Marais Band everyone is going to be happy and have an incredible time. We got married in September 2018, and our friends and family still haven't stopped talking about how amazing the music was. When planning our wedding we decided that good music was the most important part, and we could not have been happier. All our best memories surround Glenn's music, including one sing along, and one cover of Purple Rain that might have been better than the original (do NOT leave this off your list). Of course, outside of this Glenn is professional, kind, responsive and such a pleasure to work with. No reason to look any further for a band!
